SHE WORE TROUSERS

And West End People Thought
She Was a Man.

SALLIE SPRINGER NUMBER TWO

A Girl Comes From Toronto, Masquerades in Men's Clothes and Has Lots of Adventures—Falls in Love With a West End Girl—Intended Racing With Skater Hanke As An "Unknown"—A Printer's Story.

If a sensation is wanted the little town of Toronto, down the river, can generally be relied upon to furnish it, and it has voluntarily given East Liverpool something in that line, if the case as represented to a NEWS REVIEW reporter last night be true.

The story would sound fishy mixing Toronto up with it, were it not for the statement that it is something of the Sallie Springer variety. As the tale goes there appeared in this city several weeks ago an individual who, to all appearances, was a dapper young man. He wore a blue cheviot suit, stiff hat and patent leather shoes, and carried no baggage except a small satchel. Since his arrival West End people saw more or less of him until last Monday night. That evening he disappeared, and the 7 o'clock train had a passenger booked for St. Louis answering his description. All this would, of course, be commonplace, were it not for the fact that the supposed young man was not a man but a girl from Toronto, aged about 18 years, with features which, although perhaps a trifle coarse for a female, would have been handsome on the form of a man. Perhaps the only person to know of her masquerading in this manner is a well known young printer formerly employed in Wellsville. He was standing on the corner of Sixth and Market streets last Saturday evening when a stranger tapped him on the shoulder, called him by name, and said "don't you know me?" The printer replied that his questioner had the advantage of him. Then he was asked if he remembered a girl he had seen many times while employed on the Toronto Tribune. It needed only a few references to happenings in that town to brace up the printer's defective memory, and he recognized the supposed man as a girl he had seen and talked to, but never learned her name. Her hair was closely cropped and her neck shaved as usual with men. In fact the only thing that would have aroused suspicion, and that only from the closest observer, was the girl's smooth face, smooth to a degree uncommon with young men of her size and age. The girl said she had been staying at a house in West End, the occupants of which were not noted for their morality, and while in the house wore the clothes usual with her sex. But for some reason she did not wish to be recognized, and always masqueraded in men's clothes while on the streets. As a man in West End she succeeded admirably, keeping company with one of the best known and respected young ladies in that section. She admitted having fallen in love with the West End girl and how she tore herself away forever is another part of the mystery. But she seemed in earnest when she told of her Sallie Springer like affection and the printer did not doubt her word. Together the pair made the rounds of the saloons, both securing comfortable sized jags. Then they separated and the chances for discovering her name were lost. The printer could not induce her to reveal her identity while sober, and was too full to think of it afterward. Those who read of the proposed skating race between Hanke and an unknown will probably be surprised to learn that this young woman was the "unknown" referred to, at least that was a part of her story, and she backed it up with the statement that she would race with any person, male or female, in Ohio, for all the money she had. She seemed to have considerable cash while here and exhibited a roll containing about $200. The reason she did not race with Hanke she said was because those most interested would not put up enough money. She claimed she was going to skate a race in St. Louis this week.

The story is indeed a strange one; but strange things do happen and East Liverpool gets her share of them. The mysterious visitor could no doubt furnish a life story interesting in the extreme, but unless some one down the river recognizes her on this description, or the printer chances to meet her again, the cause of her escapade will remain a secret.

Young Girls Who Drink.

The charge is made that a number of young girls, whose parents are respectable and stand well with the people who know them, are in the habit of visiting a notorious saloon in the upper part of the city. One resident declares that he has seen these girls enter the place on more than one occasion, and other people say that it is not such an uncommon sight after all to see half-drunken girls on dark streets after night. If there is truth in these statements, and they can be traced to responsible people, there are liquor dealers who should have an interview with the grand jury the next time it convenes.

Another Funny Case.

While the Oschman-Abrams case was furnishing food for laughter at city hall yesterday morning the replevin case in Squire Manley's court was proving almost as amusing. The action was brought by Alfred Martin against Clark Birch to secure a horse which he gave in trade about two weeks ago. John Huff was one of the witnesses and testified that he had looked in the horse's mouth and pronounced him 6 years old. Birch's opinion advanced the animal's age one year, while Martin did not think it less than 12. Huff was candid enough to admit that he had misrepresented the horse's age and caused much merriment in the courtroom. The jury went out about 5:20 and in 10 minutes returned with a verdict of $25 for Martin. J. H. Brookes was Martin's attorney and Colonel Hill for defendant.

Make No Mistakes, Voters.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW—Since it is not long until election time, and some new members will be added to council, I think it right that attention should be called to the men who make up so important a body. The present council has done nothing to bring just criticism upon its head, and we want just such another council next year. We want good men who will devote some of their time to the work they have to do, and will not be afraid when called upon to express a radical opinion in favor of East Liverpool. There should be enterprise in a council as well as any other body, and I believe in soliciting enterprising men for the place. PROGRESS.

Caught in the Ice.

James Grim and William Bradley attempted to cross the river in an open boat last night, but being caught by two heavy cakes of ice were soon drifting, helpless, down the stream. They shouted for help but were not heard until they had drifted almost opposite the Specialty Glass works. There they were heard by the crew of the Charley Hook, who quickly rescued them from an unpleasant position. The men were almost stiff with the cold, and fully realized their perilous situation. The boat was also rescued, and after being placed on a wagon was hauled to the place where the men got it. It is the property of Willard Mercer, of the depot force.

Poker Anderson's Case.

J. E. Anderson was arrested last night and taken before Squire Rose on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday, Dec. 9, to Harry Wallace. He pleaded not guilty and gave $50 bond for his appearance for trial at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. This is the outgrowth of the Wallace-Hoover case, and is Wallace's way of getting even with Anderson, who, he claimed, prevented the girl from settling the case out of court. Wallace preferred the charge, claiming that on the date mentioned and on other Sundays Anderson sold him beer. He proposes to file other charges for the separate days.

Charity Begins at Home.

Trustee Lloyd said today that while the trustees were delighted to see the people of East Liverpool so charitable they would also like to have a little of that charity come their way. They have many people to look after, and the list is growing so rapidly that they fear great inroads upon their funds. If a portion of the food and clothing sent to Nebraska had been distributed at home it would have lightened the burden of the trustees and done a great deal of good. It would be an excellent idea to keep in mind the principle that charity begins at home.

A Handsome New Team.

Commissioner Welsh and Frank Dickey yesterday purchased in Pittsburgh a handsome team for the fire department. The horses are gray, and great fine looking fellows, of powerful build, yet so well proportioned and finely moulded as to look anything but cumbersome. They arrived in the city this morning, and will be quartered at central station, being used to draw the engine when it is needed for duty. This last acquisition makes the local company one of the finest in the state, and gives it an equipment second to none.

DEATH BY VIOLENCE

So Say the Physicians of David Rodgers.

THE INQUEST HELD YESTERDAY

Coroner Straughn Was Not Notified and It Was Conducted by Squire Norris—No Important Testimony Other Than That Given by the Doctors.

Acting Coroner Norris yesterday made official inquiry into the cause of the death of David Rodgers, the Irondale man whose life was ended so mysteriously the other night.

Among the most important evidence produced was the statements of Doctor Norris, of this city, and Doctor Tarr, of Wellsville. They confined their testimony to what they actually found to be the cause of death, minutely describing the wounds upon the body of the unfortunate man. Above the right eye was a wound and a fracture of the skull while two blood vessels on the right side of the brain and one on the left had burst. There were bruises on both elbows, and the hands were lacerated. On the back of one hand was a large black bruise, and the face showed evidence of more bruises. The knees were bruised, and there was hernia of the right side. On the right leg, four inches above the ankle, there was a cut several inches long. There were no other marks upon the body that the physicians were able to find. Several witnesses from Wellsville were present, and added some unimportant testimony to what the physicians had to say, but they could not throw any additional light upon the mystery. The physicians decided that Rodgers came to his death by violence, but did not place the responsibility.

Coroner Straughn stated in Lisbon this morning that he had received no official notice of any happening to Rodgers in this county. He had not heard of the matter, and did not know but what the body had been found in Jefferson county. Neither had he received word of an inquest being held, but if inquiry had been legally made the matter would be reported to him at once by the justice of the township in which the accident, murder or whatever it chanced to be, occurred.

Cared For the Canary.

A queer looking couple, an old man and woman, arrived at the passenger station, accompanied by a canary in a cage. They refused to talk to reporters, but told Agent Hill that they wanted rates to St. Louis for 14 people, as they were on their way to Texas, and other members of the party would be here tonight. The man seemed to have been injured at some time not long ago, as his right arm was in a sling and covered with a bandage. After inquiring for a hotel the couple left the canary in charge of Agent Hill. They said there would be 25 other canaries in the party coming tonight.

A Bit of Cold Weather.

While the mercury was very low last night, and the public was making all sorts of objections to the weather, it was not as bad as the night before by several degrees. The wind and snow made walking very disagreeable, and few people were on the streets. Various readings of the thermometer show that the mercury was flirting with zero again, and if the promise of the weather bureau holds good, it will be colder tonight and tomorrow. Water pipes froze in all parts of the city last night, and the plumbers are richer than ever today.

Continuing the Meeting.

There was a wonderful "after meeting" at the First Methodist Episcopal church last night. There were no seekers at the mercy seat, and the pastor announced that in all probability the occasion would be the last of the present series. Later in the night seven young ladies and two young men came forward, seeking God's forgiveness. This evidence of good yet being accomplished caused Reverend Huston to change his decision, and he will preach tonight. You have an earnest invitation to be present.

Taken to the Infirmary.

Eva Moore, the girl mentioned in the NEWS REVIEW yesterday as being in charge of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, was taken to the infirmary today. The girl is but 16 years of age, and is in a delicate condition, laying the blame upon a married man in Steubenville. She refused to be sent to the house of her father in West Newton, Pa., and as the ladies could keep her no longer the trustees sent her to Lisbon. The girl is not of the soundest mind imaginable, and every effort will be made to have the man responsible for her condition make restitution.

A Big Flood.

Yesterday was the eleventh anniversary of the big flood on the Ohio when the river reached the highest point in 50 years, and has never been approached since that time. It was also the most costly flood the valley ever knew, and hundreds of thousands of dollars were swept away in the few days that it lasted. A comparison of the river yesterday with what it was during the flood was interesting since it recalled a time when the groundhog did not see his shadow, and there was thawing weather in February.

Chosen as Representative.

Willard R. Morris received official notification today that he had been elected representative to the grand lodge of Odd Fellows, thus giving the assurance that East Liverpool has both representatives from this district, the other being George H. Owen. There was a hard fight for the place, this city doing all in its power to wrest the honors from Steubenville, where they have been for years. News of the victory will be received with no little satisfaction by Odd Fellows in this city.

Busy at Irondale.

Word from Irondale says that the tin plant seems a very busy place these days, and all the men who apply are given work. The strikers are very quiet, and there has not been the slightest show of trouble during the past few months. The town is divided on the question at issue between the non-union and union men, and many heated arguments take place, but the men have not come to blows. The ladies of the village are also interested, and stand steadfastly to the different sides.

A Good Word For Scheller.

In speaking of Bert Scheller, the wrestler who will contend with Allison at Turner hall on Saturday evening, the Beaver Star says: "While here, Scheller made an excellent record for sobriety and honesty, and for being not only a wrestler of the first-class order, but a gentleman also." These are words which many more brilliant lights in the sporting world have never been able to secure from any reputable journal.

Two New Cases.

Mary M. Surles today brought suit before Squire Travis asking judgment for $212.70 from F. S. Albright on a contract for rent. The hearing will be Saturday afternoon. The same plaintiff, as executrix of the late Harry H. Surles, sued George Wucherer, Sophia Wucherer and S. A. M. Werner for $147, the amount of a promissory note given in 1885. It will be heard in Squire Travis' court on Tuesday.

Still in the Future.

The extension of Fourth street is still in the office of Engineer George, although he has almost completed the preliminary work allotted to him. The plans have been prepared, and will be presented to council at the next regular meeting, after which the matter will be taken by Solicitor Clark to the probate court. Meantime the Specialty Glass company are earnestly hoping there will be no delay.

Big Hotel Burned.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS REVIEW. INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 7.—Fire this afternoon destroyed the Dennison Hotel, one of the largest in the west, and was soon beyond the control of the department. One fireman has already been killed, and a great conflagration is threatened. The intense cold greatly impedes the work of the firemen.

Bill of Exceptions Filed.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS REVIEW. LISBON, Feb. 7.—The bill of exceptions in the McGregor case was filed this morning, and is one of the largest documents ever filed in the county. As Judge Billingsley is not at home the matter will have to rest where it is until he returns.

Republican Central Committee Meeting.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS REVIEW. LISBON, Feb. 7.—The Republican county committee will meet in the courthouse on the afternoon of Feb. 26 for the purpose of setting the time for holding the county primaries. Any other business which may come up for consideration will be transacted.

THE OHIO IS CLOSED

An Ice Bridge Forms on the River.

IT BROKE MORE THAN ONCE

But Now They Think It Has Come to Stay For a Time—There Will be a Path Over the Ice Tomorrow, and You Can Cross if You Wish.

Much to the surprise of rivermen, who have been closely watching the murky tide for several days, the ice did not stop running last night, and there was no bridge this morning. It required a close watch to see the ice moving an hour before noon, and it was expected the river would close before night. The cakes of ice are very large, extending almost across the river, a sure indication that it would close before a great while. Wharfmaster Pilgrim kept both eyes wide open this morning, and was confident that things would be going his way before night. At 11:30 o'clock the ice stopped moving, and the river was closed. The wharfmaster said that it meant an ice bridge, and by morning there would be a path across the ice. If the night is cold, and the weather bureau says that it will be several degrees colder than last night, the ice will be solid tomorrow, and all those who desire to can cross with little difficulty. It has been a long time since the river was frozen over, and the novelty of the event will be appreciated by people who have been vainly endeavoring to cross the river for some time.

The ice opened again about noon, and began to move slowly taking with it the hopes of those who wanted to see the natural bridge. It soon closed again, however, and now it really seems to be frozen. The narrow channel in the lower part of town was closed before 10 o'clock this morning, and the ice seemed to be thickening as the hours wore away.

Weaving a Web.

The railroad detectives seem to be weaving a web about the unfortunate East Liverpool men who were captured at Empire not long ago, and are now in jail at Steubenville, waiting the action of the grand jury. Detective Melan has made an examination of the marks on the station at Freeman and found indications to show that they were made by tools in possession of the men. People have also been found who are willing to say that the men were at Freeman when the growler passed up that night.

Only a Private Pipe.

Persons in the neighborhood of Washington and Fourth streets noticed this morning that the gutter was filled with water which did not freeze, and that a stream of more or less size was making its way toward the river. Superintendent Morley, of the water works, made an examination, and found that it was not a main that had burst, but simply a private pipe leading to a house near by. The break made a pond of slush until the cold asserted its strength, and froze the lake over.

A Strike at Tiltonville.

The Steubenville Star says that the employees of the Tiltonville sanitary pottery went on a strike yesterday morning because they had been notified by the proprietors of a reduction of 25 per cent in all departments. It will be remembered that the men there were on a strike some time ago, and the difficulty was but recently settled. It is not known here what prospect there is of a settlement.

Fixed the Plug.

The fire plug on Seventh street which was reported frozen when the fire department was called to the Senator fire the other night, has been fixed and is ready for service. The plug was not frozen its whole length only the upper stuffer being affected, a defect that could have been remedied in short order. Other plugs in the city have been examined and found to be all right.

It Made Them Laugh.

The few people who saw the "Trolley System" at the Grand last night were delighted with the play and the players. The piece, while nothing more than a farce, is filled with humor of that character calculated to draw smiles from a wooden post. The company will be received by a larger crowd should it ever return.

Some of the Sick.

Mrs. Al Ferran is confined to her home threatened with the grip. J. E. McDonald is slowly recovering from the attack of scarlet fever which has confined him to his home, but it will be weeks before he is able to be out.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, FEB. 7.

For President, WILLIAM MCKINLEY, Of Ohio.

The weather clerk must be down on the people of this latitude.

The ticket of all loyal Republicans in Ohio places William McKinley for the presidency and sends Hon. J. B. Foraker to the senate.

If there is going to be a ship canal from Lake Erie to the river East Liverpool should be in position to derive its share of the benefit.

It is to be hoped that Clay Evans will whip his Democratic opponents out of their long cow-hide boots, and compel the recognition he deserves as the governor of Tennessee.

If the duties on imports were equal to what we realized under the McKinley law there would be no necessity to sell bonds and amateur statesmen would not have to lay awake at nights devising schemes to save the treasury from bankruptcy.

The coming Republican convention promises to be a hummer of no mean proportions. In addition to containing more delegates than ever before gathered at a convention in Ohio, it will be called upon to choose the winning candidates from the biggest field on record.

ANTHONY HOWELLS, the wealthy coal operator of Massillon, who was appointed consul to Cardiff under the endorsement of Doctor Ikert, is thinking of resigning. Perhaps the doctor will hand over the job to some member of the Democratic convention which so completely ignored him last summer. It would be heaping coals of fire on the sinner's head.

A STANDING ARGUMENT.

The people who want to see senators elected by the voters and not by the legislatures of the states they represent can find a good argument in the fact that Montana, Washington and Wyoming have been represented by only half a delegation. The legislatures which met in the winter of 1892-3 could not decide upon incumbents to fill the seats made vacant the next March. As the biennial session idea prevails in all these states, their senatorial delegations have only been half full during that whole time. Had these offices been filled by a vote of the people there would have been no vacancies, and the senate would have had its full complement of voters. Perhaps the general public did not suffer a great deal by the vacancies, and it is possible that the senators would not have set the country on fire with their eloquence if they had been chosen, but it is certain that the idea of a government of the people would have been better carried out and their votes would have been recorded on some interesting subjects.

A Naval Officer Hurt.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A cablegram has been received at the navy department from Admiral Meade, commanding the North Atlantic station now at St. Thomas, with three of his vessels, the New York, Raleigh and Cincinnati, stating that Assistant Engineer Burke of the Cincinnati had sustained an accident by having his hand cut off by the machinery of his vessel. He will be sent home as soon as he is able to travel.

Spain Grants the Concessions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—United States Minister Taylor at Madrid has cabled the state department that the act passed by the Spanish cortes, placing American products imported into Cuba and Porto Rico, in the second column of the tariff schedules having received royal approval, has been officially published there.

General Schofield Named For the Place.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The president has approved the bill creating the rank of lieutenant general of the army and nominated General Schofield

REPLY TO QUEEN LIL.

Officials Say She Had No Throne to Abdicate.

STILL LIABLE FOR REBELLING.

Minister Willis said to have objected to the trial of the conspirators by Military Court—Damaging Papers Found in the Late Queen's Palace.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7.—Additional advices from Honolulu concerning the abdication of Queen Liliuokalani state that the government has made a reply to her letter. It is signed by Attorney General Smith, and reads as follows:

"MADAME—The document executed by you purporting to contain your abdication and renunciation of all the sovereign rights heretofore claimed by you, has been delivered in your behalf to the president. As you were under arrest at the time this instrument was signed, it is desired before accepting and placing the same on file to make clear to you, Mrs. Liliuokalani Dominis, in order that no misunderstanding may hereafter arise, the views of the government in the matter:

"First—The execution of this document cannot be taken to exempt you in the slightest degree from personal and individual liability for such complicity as a due investigation and trial may show that you had in the late conspiracy against the government and the consequent loss of life, which position is recognized by you in your letter.

"Second—It cannot be conceded that such rights and claims as you voluntarily relinquish have had any legal existence since Jan. 24, 1893, when by your public announcement that you no longer considered yourself bound by the fundamental law of the land under which you took office, and by which your acts in attempting by the mere exercise of your own will to establish a new system of government contract existing between you and the people was dissolved and all sovereign rights heretofore vested in you were lost. The statement by the members of your then cabinet that they could not control your proposed action and their appeal to the citizens of Honolulu for assistance was the next step which led to a resumption by the people of the right of government.

"Third—So far as your communication may be taken as a notice to the disaffected that it is your desire that the republic shall be recognized by them as the sole and lawful government of the country it is fully appreciated. In this connection your selfish appeal for clemency for those who took part in the late insurrection will receive full consideration, by order of the executive council. It is learned from trustworthy sources that United States Minister Willis has made objection, both written and verbal to the powers of the military court, which is trying the rebel conspirators. He seems to take the same views as Paul Neumann, counsel for the prisoners, that offenses committed previous to the date on which martial law was proclaimed should be tried before a civil court and jury. The text of his objection cannot be obtained at this time, but it is understood to be of a nature to cause the government more uneasiness than anything that has taken place since the beginning of the rebellion.

The queen's abdication was not unexpected. In many quarters it is looked upon as a ruse to secure clemency when she appears before the military court, now sitting. It is not generally considered that she is sincere in making the protestation. In the last advices printed in these dispatches, the story of her arrest and being placed under guard, where she still is, were told. Also the finding of arms, ammunition and dynamite bombs was recorded.

Since then the premises have been searched again and a number of damaging papers were found. They showed that ex-Queen Liliuokalani was certain of restoration, as she even went so far as to have a new cabinet made out. It was to be composed as follows:

Robert R. Wilcox, minister of foreign affairs; Samuel Nowlin, minister of the interior; Charles T. Gulick, minister of finance; and C. W. Ashford, attorney general. As associate justices she named Antonio Rosa and V. V. Ashford. W. H. Rickard was to be marshal. Governors for the different islands were selected. A new constitution was prepared by Charles T. Gulick. In fact, everything was in readiness for the restoration.

Arrests for treason and conspiracy have been numerous. In all there are about 350 men under lock and key.

EX-QUEEN LILIUOKALANI.

This number includes the prisoners of war. It is thought the government has under arrest nearly all who took part in the rebellion. The trial of the leaders has been finished before the military court, but the finding of the court has not been made public. Paul Neumann has been acting as counsel for all the rebels on trial. The trial of the others is going on at this writing.

A great deal of important testimony was secured from Nowlin and Bertellman, who have turned state's evidence to save their necks.

IT WILL BE COLDER.

The Weather Bureau Promises Worse Weather Tomorrow.

THIS SPELL A RECORD BREAKER.

It Drops Down to 65 Below In Canada.

While a Gentle Rain Falls In Texas—26 Below on the Wilkesbarre Mountain The Storm Is General.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The present record-breaking cold spell still continues throughout the country, with slight abatement, with the promise from the weather bureau that it will be colder by tomorrow morning. It is perhaps one of the coldest spells the people of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and adjacent states ever experienced. The thermometer has registered from zero down to 26 below at different points, reaching 26 below on Wilkesbarre mountain, near Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Traffic is badly delayed throughout the country from snow blockades, etc. Vessels come into port covered with ice. Several steamers are overdue. From different sections of the country come reports of people frozen to death.

The lowest temperature reported is that at White River, Can., 65 below zero. The highest temperature is at Galveston, Tex., which reports 56 above. Rains have occurred there. A storm has formed on the gulf coast, causing rain and snow throughout the lower Mississippi valley, extending as far east as Cincinnati.

The thermometer in this city has dropped to 7 degrees below zero. This is the coldest weather since Dec. 31, 1890, when the thermometer registered 6 degrees below zero, and the coldest day on record since the weather bureau was established in 1870.

The other two days that were colder were Feb. 24, 1873, when the mercury dropped to four degrees below zero, and Jan. 10, 1875, when it registered 6 below.

BOSTON—Seven degrees below has broken the season's record.

PHILADELPHIA—The thermometer in the weather bureau registered 3 degrees below, the coldest weather experienced in this city for 13 years.

PORTLAND, Me.—The mercury registered 10 degrees below zero, with a stiff east wind blowing.

BUFFALO—Thirteen and three-tenths degrees below zero was the record made here, the lowest since Jan. 25, 1884.

ALBANY—The thermometer reached 20 degrees below here.

CHICAGO—The snow threatens a blockade here, since the cold wave is reported from Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan and Indiana.

WASHINGTON—Zero mark was not touched here.

RICHMOND—It reached 8 above here.

CONCORD, N. H.—It reached 20 below here.

WHITE RIVER, Ont.—Sixty-five degrees below is the record here.

COLUMBUS—Reports from throughout Ohio show an average of 10 below.

PITTSBURGH—The thermometer reached 10 below here, the coldest February weather for 20 years.

KANSAS CITY—Blinding snow and sand storms and a rapidly falling thermometer have combined to create the worst blizzard that has prevailed in the southwest in years. Fifteen degrees below zero is recorded.

CINCINNATI—Ice flows in the river are very heavy. The place between here and Wheeling it has gorged. The nearest gorge is at Buena Vista, above Maysville. MEMPHIS—The streets are almost impassable from a freezing rain.

HURON, S. D.—The worst storm experienced here since the great blizzard of 1888 has prevailed over the whole state. The temperature has been from 12 to 14 degrees below zero. The Weather Bureau Promises Worse Weather Tomorrow.

THIS SPELL A RECORD BREAKER.

It Drops Down to 65 Below In Canada.

While a Gentle Rain Falls In Texas—26 Below on the Wilkesbarre Mountain The Storm Is General.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The present record-breaking cold spell still continues throughout the country, with slight abatement, with the promise from the weather bureau that it will be colder by tomorrow morning. It is perhaps one of the coldest spells the people of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and adjacent states ever experienced. The thermometer has registered from zero down to 26 below at different points, reaching 26 below on Wilkesbarre mountain, near Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Traffic is badly delayed throughout the country from snow blockades, etc. Vessels come into port covered with ice. Several steamers are overdue. From different sections of the country come reports of people frozen to death.

The lowest temperature reported is that at White River, Can., 65 below zero. The highest temperature is at Galveston, Tex., which reports 56 above. Rains have occurred there. A storm has formed on the gulf coast, causing rain and snow throughout the lower Mississippi valley, extending as far east as Cincinnati.

The thermometer in this city has dropped to 7 degrees below zero. This is the coldest weather since Dec. 31, 1890, when the thermometer registered 6 degrees below zero, and the coldest day on record since the weather bureau was established in 1870.

The other two days that were colder were Feb. 24, 1873, when the mercury dropped to four degrees below zero, and Jan. 10, 1875, when it registered 6 below.

BOSTON—Seven degrees below has broken the season's record.

SCHOOL BUILDING DAMAGED.

A Furnace Blows Up In a New Structure at Elyria.

ELYRIA, O., Feb. 7.—The furnace in the new West Side public school building blew up with terrific force during the noon recess of the school. The northern wall of the main building was blown completely out. Fire immediately started and was only extinguished after much damage had been done.

Had the explosion occurred 15 minutes later, when 300 children would have been in the building, a frightful loss of life would have occurred. The loss on the building will be about $7,000.

A Preacher Turns Bankrobber.

PORTLAND, O., Feb. 7.—A man entered the First National Bank of East Portland and, presenting a revolver called on Cashier E. T. Holgate, who was alone in the bank, to throw up his hands. At this juncture the cashier of the Citizens' bank, across the street, saw the affair, rushed in with a shotgun and arrested the robber, who was then turned over to the police. The thief was identified as Rev. J. S. Reid, a Baptist minister.

Speilberger was held in $500 bail for court, but when his case was called he failed to answer and his bail was forfeited. He was subsequently located in this city.

The robbers then fled. Westgate is 50 years old and will die.

The Bond Issue Expected Then or Later.

THE PRESIDENT STILL HOPES

Some Congressional Action—The High Rate Demanded by Representatives of London Bankers Also Causing Delay. The Issue Speedy Action.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—It seems now as if the announcement of a loan to be made until after the 10th, when the house will vote on the pending administration bill. Messrs. Morgan and Belmont of New York, who have been during the last several days in consultation with the officials on the loan question, returned home and, it is believed, without any positive knowledge as to what the administration would do. Close observers, however, are of the opinion that these gentlemen, on behalf of their London clients, made the president a definite offer to take the $100,000,000, but at a rate of interest considerably in excess of 3 per cent, if not as high as 3 1/2.

FOR A HAWAIIAN CABLE.

The Proposed Appropriation Debated in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The Hawaiian question in general, and the Hawaiian cable in particular, were the main themes before the senate. The diplomatic consular appropriation bill was taken up and would have been quickly disposed of, except for the item of $500,000 for immediately beginning cable construction between the United States and Hawaii. Mr. Mills (Tex.) made a point of order against the cable proposition, which is likely to rule it out, but the decision was withheld until after the bill could further debate Hawaii.

AMENDMENTS DEFEATED.

The Second Day's Debate on the Administration Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The second day's debate on the administration bill authorizing the issue of $500,000,000 of gold bonds for the retirement of the legal tenders and treasury notes, was not productive of marked incident of any kind. A good deal of confusion occurred when the committee began voting on amendments to the bill. Most of the amendments were defeated as rapidly as offered.

The Democratic Majority Eliminated.

MAY PUNISH PULLMAN.

Judge Grosscup Threatens Him for Alleged Contempt of Court.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—"If Mr. Pullman has evaded the serving of the subpoena, I shall certainly punish him for contempt of court," said Judge Grosscup. This morning half a dozen of George M. Pullman's clerks were brought before the judge and sworn as to their knowledge of Mr. Pullman's actions on Monday. A subpoena was issued for his presence as a witness in Judge Grosscup's court, on behalf of the defense in the conspiracy cases. The subpoena was given to Deputy United States Marshal Jones on Monday morning. At the office of the Pullman company he was informed by one of the attendants that Mr. Pullman was in the building and his private office, but Mr. Pullman seems to have gotten away from him and finally out of town.

Engene V. Debs was on the stand all of yesterday afternoon and is again today. He said he never counseled or advised in any form the use of violence or interference with the United States mail trains. He had never, at Blue Island or elsewhere, told the men to tie up the roads, mail or no mail trains. He was shown the famous "save your money and buy a gun" telegram, and said he had not sent it or seen it until it had been sent out by one of the directors. Other telegrams in which the government charged violence by indication and inference were shown him and he denied having sent them, and denied the inference drawn by the prosecution.

A PIPELINE BILL.

Oil Operators of Different States Hope to See It Defeated.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 7.—The Marshall pipeline bill to repeal the law prohibiting the consolidation of pipelines, which is being fought so hard by Pennsylvania operators and which, Ohio, West Virginia and New York independent producers hope to see defeated, has been brought out of the house committee. The vote in the affirmative was so strong the few members of the committee opposed to the measure did not think it worth while to cast a ballot.

There was quite a delegation of independent producers before the committee. Ex-Senator J. W. Lee (Pittsburg) led the opposition. He was backed up by this Butler county party: Clarence Walker, Colonel W. A. Clark, Jacob Tiedeker, O. M. Russell, Amos Steel-smith and David Branner. Ex-Senator Lewis Emery and ex-Representative Braddock were to have been here, but illness kept them at home.

MRS. BLIXT TESTIFIES.

She Corroborates the Testimony of Her Husband in the Hayward Case.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 7.—Mrs. Blixt has given her testimony in the Hayward case, mainly corroborative of Blixt's story of his relations with Hayward and the many conversations they held. Coming to the night of the murder, she said: "About 11 o'clock Harry came in and went to our bedroom. He said: 'Blixt, are you asleep?' About 3 o'clock Harry came downstairs again and hollered out loud: 'Blixt, are you asleep?' twice. Then he said: 'That girl on the fifth floor has been murdered. She was murdered for her money. Some fellows of her met her out there and murdered her for her money. Isn't that too bad. I'm afraid my $7,000 is lost. I wonder if I'd better go and tell the insurance people in the morning. And they don't know who done it. They ain't got no clue.'"

Mrs. Blixt overheard a part of the conversation and said, in telling it: "Harry came down and talked with Blixt in the boiler room. I heard him say: 'Those darn fools think I know something about that case. They thought they would take me before them and I would break down.'"

Burglars Shoot an Officer.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Three masked burglars broke into the postoffice at Mattevan. They used gunpowder to blow open the safe. The explosion was heard by Officer Marshal E. Snyder. As he crossed the threshold the bullet entered Snyder's mouth and passed down through the neck, lodging near the left shoulder. Snyder's condition is very critical. The burglars escaped with the contents of the safe. The amount of money stolen is believed to be several hundred dollars.

For Cruelty to Animals.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 7.—The Humane society has brought suit against the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company for cruelty to animals. It is alleged that the company placed as many as 38 head of cattle in a single car, and that while en route from Buffalo to Wilkesbarre, several of the cattle died from suffocation.

Fighting in India.

CALCUTTA, Feb. 7.—A dispatch from Lahore says there has been severe fighting in the state of Kashmir (also called Chitral) between Umra, the khan of Jandol, and the Chitralis, resulting in heavy losses on both sides. The Chitralis were defeated. Umra had 4,000 men, of whom 1,000 were armed with rifles.

DINNERS IN FRISCO.

CURIOUS COSMOPOLITAN RESTAURANTS ON THE COAST.

One May Dine in the Manner of a Different Country Every Night in the Week. A Dirty Italian Restaurant on the Water Front That Is Very Popular.

One of the features of cosmopolitan San Francisco is its restaurants. Every foreign colony boasts of a place where its native cooking can be had, and adventurous San Franciscans who care to look these places up can dine in the manner of a different country every night in the week. If an elaborate Chinese dinner, with its numberless impossible courses, each accompanied by sweetmeats, proves unattractive, a Hawaiian dinner, with poi and salted fish, can be had by walking a few blocks. For those who like highly spiced dinners there are the Italian and Spanish restaurants to choose from, and for those with small appetites, who look for novelty in service, there are the Turkish restaurants, with their unpronounceable dishes and delicious coffee.

The most popular of the foreign restaurants are the Italian. There are several of these scattered about the Latin quarter, which are much frequented by San Franciscans on account of the excellence of the cooking. Most of them are dirty, very dirty, as to floors and walls, and the Italians are not oversqueamish regarding the table linen. When a party of Americans enter, however, there is a general shuffle among the waiters to secure the service of the table and the prospective tip. The question of precedence being settled, the wine stained tablecloth is whisked off and replaced by one not always newly laundered or else suspiciously damp.

These restaurants are rarely on the main streets and have to be approached through dark alleys. One situated behind the county jail occupies the back room of a small Italian grocery store. In going there one is reminded of dark deeds and sharp stilettoes, but the dinner is worth the journey. The chef of this place is famous for cooking "Italiani," a paste made by himself and cut in strips and cooked with a sauce made of tomatoes, spices and mushrooms. It is extremely rich and very peppery, but all Italian dishes are strongly dashed with chili peppers.

The dinner is attended with great ceremony. A bottle of their sour claret is served with each dinner. Every Italian drinks about two quarts of it with his dinner, so the bottle supply sometimes runs short. In this event the waiter goes to the bar, fills an empty bottle from a demijohn, drives in a cork, and then carries the bottle to the table where it is needed, sometimes four feet from the bar, and impressively producing his corkscrew draws the cork as carefully as though he were handling the finest burgundy. His demeanor is so serious throughout the performance that one dare not look amused.

A very popular restaurant is Bazzuro's, which is situated near the water front. This is greatly patronized by the Italian fishermen, who file in after their day's work, still wearing their gum boots and smelling strongly of their craft. It is also frequented by the Italian vegetable gardeners, who drive in from the outskirts of town, and after disposing of their stock stop to dine. When the place is reasonably well filled, there is a babel of voices. They are all talking at once, and out of the confusion the word "scudi" is distinguished above all others.

This means money, which the proprietor says, with a shrug, "they talk about all the time, all the time." The fishermen bring the best of their day's catch here, and the gardeners offer their choicest vegetables. The chef, whose kitchen is back of the dining tables and in full view of the room, is a merry fellow, and between his juggling feats, tossing his pan into the air to turn the cooking fish or meat exchanges gossip and jests with the diners. This place is kept comparatively clean. The floor is covered with sawdust and the ceiling festooned with gaudy colored paper cut in fanciful designs. Two parrots add to the general din, and all sorts and conditions of cats prowl around the floor.

The restaurant is conducted by two brothers, one of whom waits on table, while the other attends bar and looks after the cash receipts. Every Italian after dining stops at the bar for a chat and a drink. Instead of a liquor, the host pours generous glasses of claret for himself and his guests, and these are speedily tossed off. A casual visitor, after witnessing this ceremony about 25 times in quick succession, is apt to grow nervous about the health of the host, but he appears none the worse for his conviviality at the end of the evening. The younger brother sometimes relieves his brother at the bar. He is quite as hospitable, and his invariable drink being absinthe and seltzer his case seems even more alarming.

This restaurant, at 7:30 in the evening, when dinner is in full swing, presents an odd sight, the Italians sitting around the tables, most of them with their hats on, gesticulating and talking excitedly across the room, while they roll the spaghetti round their forks and dexterously transfer it in yard lengths to their mouths. A butcher, with all the marks of his trade about him, occupies a table with the policeman on the beat, who gets the best service of all; a few men about town, who have heard of the chef's fame, and forget the unsavory looking company in their enjoyment of the plates, and often a table or two taken by young society girls with their chaperon and escorts. The girls consider a dinner at Bazzuro's a tremendous lark.

The Americans do not venture on the claret so generously served with their dinner. A flask of Chianti is ordered in its stead, and the proprietor always proffers the empty flask to the youngest member of the party as a souvenir.—San Francisco Letter.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The little girls' dancing class gave a pleasant reception to the older members at Bradshaw hall last night.

J. D. West received a telegram yesterday stating that his son, Harry, was dangerously ill at Kansas City, Mo., where he has been attending school, and requesting him to come at once. He left on the 3:46 train.

Revival services are being continued at several churches in the city, and the attendance each night is large. The ministers are meeting with success, and the membership of the churches have been sensibly increased.

There was a big row in prospect on Second street last night, when one of the contestants slipped as he was about to strike his opponent, and fell to the ground. His head was cut by the fall, and his opponent, pitying his plight, failed to strike, and let him go.

While the younger people were anticipating fine sleighing yesterday there was snow enough in the country to make pleasant riding. The country roads have been good for sleighing, except in places, for several weeks, although East Liverpool streets were in bad shape.

Rev. W. F. Weir, of Toronto, assisted Reverend McCullough in ordaining or installing the newly elected elders of the Second Presbyterian church last night. The two ministers are conducting services in the Second church and the meetings are attended nightly by large crowds despite the cold weather.

The intense cold is being felt the worst by the motormen on the electric line in this city and several of them have had fingers and toes frozen. They are finding the shortcomings of the windbreakers greater than ever imagined. Superintendent Andrews froze one of his fingers yesterday and it is causing him intense pain.

William Hackworth and W. Cuningham skated a race in the rink yesterday afternoon for a good sized purse, although the matter was kept quiet and but few saw the contest. Hackworth fell a number of times, causing him to lose the race. Later Hackworth won a valuable and useful prize by beating John Bennett a quarter of a lap in a two mile race.

It is related that one of the meanest men in the world lives in the East End. He is fond of dogs, and owns a hard looking cur of the yellow breed, but possessed of that instinct which if worn by his master would be called common sense. One night this week when it was so cold that frost formed on the window panes of his house this mean man drove his dog into the street, declaring with an oath that he needed all the heat there was in the house, and could not afford to share it with the dog.

"East Liverpool gives as much to charity as any town in the country," remarked a lady who is always interested in efforts to advance the condition of the poor. "I watched it last winter when the strike was in progress and I saw people give who never wanted the world to know anything about it, and whose names have never come out. Only the other day I noticed a case where a whole family made a sacrifice so that another family living not far away might have a good Sunday dinner."

A collector, whose duties take him among the people where his bills are usually paid in small change, is responsible for the statement that old coins are again disappearing from circulation, and are hard to secure. When the hard times were at their worst, and people scraped every cent they could obtain, old coins were plentiful. Nickels without the word cents and silver three-cent pieces were as thick as ordinary pieces of money for a time, and some collectors were so fortunate as to make some good finds.

A half dozen cases of cruelty to horses was seen on the streets yesterday and this morning, and more than one person wondered if the humane society was frozen up or was again out of funds. Overloading teams when the roads are so slippery that a horse can find foothold only with the greatest difficulty is cruelty of the worst order, and should be punished along with other crimes in that category. Leaving unblanketed horses exposed to such weather as existed yesterday afternoon is another branch of the crime.

One or more strangers are working the old spectacle racket in this city after having been exposed and driven out of nearly every city in the state. They represent themselves as salesmen of potatoes, onions or apples as the case may be, and take orders, but before going remark that they found a pair of spectacles on a street car and will sell them cheap. In most cases where the spectacles are bought the purchaser pays a dollar for 10 cent glasses. A well known saloonist on the Midway knew the stranger's game as soon as he broached the subject and it was amusing to see the fakir depart.

They Know Nothing Of It.

When the commissioners were questioned today regarding their visit to the city they did not seem to know anything about a conference with Al Johnson or any other officials of the street railway as was erroneously stated in a local paper last night. Johnson did not come to town today, and if he wants to see the commissioners this afternoon he will have to come on a special.

Some Money Involved.

F. E. Grosshans against the Baer's Sons company is the title of a suit filed today in the court of Squire Travis. It seems that Richard Wilhelm sold some goods to the defendant, and being unable to collect the money had some of the funds of the concern held by merchants in this place attached. Henry Baer, of the company, was here today looking after the case.

The Next Number.

The next number of the Young Men's Christian association course will be the concert given by the Schubert quartet at the Grand tomorrow evening. The company comes so well recommended that there is little doubt as to the reception. The ladies who accompany the quartet are specialists who will be appreciated.

Four New Cases.

The township trustees are burdened with applications for relief today no less than four new applicants appearing. Among these is one case with especially painful circumstances connected, and the authorities could do nothing but help the people. The list has grown much larger than the trustees expected.

It was "standing room only" at the Star theater last night before the entertainment began. The Young Men's Christian association course, with the Schubert Male quartet, of Chicago, as principal attraction, proved even more taking than any that has gone before. The quartet proved all that had been expected of it—melodious, and possessed of unusual variety.—Buffalo Express. At the Grand Opera House, Friday, Feb. 8.

It Is Cold at City Hall.

The cold has penetrated to city hall, and business is suspended. Not a new case is on the docket, and the people seem too cold to be wicked, for not an arrest has been made in several days. There is no one in jail, and no homeless wanderer asked to be locked in one of the spacious bed rooms last night.

Miss Hughes plays the harp with consummate grace and skill—as an artist of the first rank. She has studied with the most renowned harpists, and is a most accomplished and superior performer. At the Grand Opera House, Friday Feb. 8.

Opposed to Sant.

The Salem News is opposed to that city paying John Sant, of this place, for information that will put $3,000 in the treasury, and justly condemns any secret session of the council. The News declares that Auditor Harvey will tell them how to get the money without charging them a cent for the facts.

The commissioners arrived on the noon train and this afternoon are conferring with Lieutenant Supplee regarding the armory matter. The bids will be opened this afternoon, and the contract for the work awarded to the lowest.

JAPANESE RITES.

Frederick Villiers Describes Funerals After the Battle of Ping-Yang.

Many of the sick and wounded who die are cremated. Their ashes are collected, placed in small square boxes, interred for a time in the little cemetery outside the foreign settlement at Chemulpo, and after awhile exhumed and sent to Japan. The ceremony I beheld in Chemulpo after the fight at Ping-Yang was not impressive or solemn, but simply curious. Lightly bodies had been cremated in various parts of the country and forwarded to the treaty port in small boxes. These were placed in two large, black cases at the hospital, and preceded by a motley group of coolies, citizens and soldiers were carried to the burial plot.

First came coolies with branches of foliage and white streamers in their hands. Then a few soldiers, marching with reversed arms. Immediately preceding the black cases was a Shinto priest in yellow kimono and a black gauze shako. Round his neck was a purple cord, at the end of which hung a fan. In his right hand was a flute, which from time to time as the procession wended its way he tooted on, producing an inharmonious sound which reminded me of my own attempts on that instrument when a boy. The coolies, the followers and the lookers on seemed to treat the whole thing more as a good joke than a solemn function and chatted and laughed to their hearts' content.

Arrived at the cemetery, the procession halted before the altar, on which were placed bottles of sake, fruit, eggs and birds of various kinds, including a live rooster. Behind this hospitable board were placed the remains of the 80 bodies. The Shinto priest, who stood alone before the edibles, stretched out his hands and made several passes with his fan in the direction of the rooster, groaned aloud, then clapped his hands three times, after which he indulged a little on the flute. Then he groaned again, straightened himself, retired a few paces, took several paces to the left and right, then advanced again, groaned and tooted. He then requested by a sign one of the mourners to advance and take his place.

He then handed one of the branches of foliage to the gentleman and retired. The mourner proceeded to lay the branch on a small table in front of the altar, then saluted and moved away to allow another mourner to take his place. When all the branches were piled on the table, the black cases were opened and the small square boxes taken out by the coolies and carefully interred. The Shinto priest retired to the bosom of his family, with the sake bottle, the live rooster and the rest of the chow. In lieu of tombstones, the Japs use, when campaigning, small wooden posts to mark the resting place of their dead.—Frederick Villiers.

Another Revival.

Revival services are being conducted at the Christian church by Reverend Huffer and Reverend Slater, of Covington, Ky. The gentlemen are meeting with success, and will continue the services as long as the people are interested. Reverend Ferrell, the New Cumberland singer, will be present tonight.

Brave Men Behind the Guns.

Feb. 6 is the anniversary of the taking of Fort Henry, Tenn. (1862), by Commodore Foote's gunboats. The defense was made by 54 men with nine guns. They held out two hours in order to allow the infantry garrison time to retreat. Captain Jesse Taylor commanded the gunners, who belonged to the volunteer militia of Tennessee. When the Union fleet was seen bearing down on the work, General Tilghman, the post commandant, asked Taylor "to hold out one hour." He assigned a gun to each vessel. These were seven in number—four ironclads leading, and three wooden gunboats. Fort Henry's guns open on the fleet with a perfect "broadside," and for 20 minutes the action was hot. The ironclad Essex was pierced above the porthole, and the shot entered the boiler. She dropped out of the fight. About that time a rifled gun in the fort burst, and a columbiad was spiked by its own priming wire. The ironclads then drew closer. Two of Taylor's guns were struck and shattered and their gunners disabled by simultaneous shots. The gunboat shells also penetrated the walls as though they were of pine boards. Another gun was speedily disabled, making GENERAL TILGHMAN five that were useless, and 16 men had fallen beside them.

Murat's Cavalry Charge at Eylau.

The fight had lasted nearly two hours, time enough for the garrison to save themselves. General Tilghman ordered the colors down, but the staff had been shot through and the halyards had fouled at the crossrees. The flag could not be lowered. Captain Taylor and an old "man-o'-war's man" then climbed up the steepest riddled mast, the target for a steady gunboat fire, and lowered their tattered ensign.

The Union fleet carried over 50 guns. Foote's flagship, the ironclad Cincinnati, received one shot through her front and her upper works were bored full of holes. All the casualties of the fleet were suffered on the ironclads Essex and Cincinnati. They numbered 39, double the loss in the fort.

GEORGE L. KILMER.

Antebellum Heroes.

On Feb. 4, 1847, 400 regulars and border volunteers dashed into Pueblo de Taos, N. M., to punish the insurrectionary Mexican and Indians for the massacre of Governor Brent and party three weeks before. In the old mission church and several five story pueblos near it 600 "greasers" and redskin allies received the onslaught of the whites. Their citadel had been loopholed for defense; besides a strong wall inclosing it, served as a rampart.

MURAT.

horsesmen, hewing a pathway by his own fiery strength, his white plume, like the pennon of Marmion on the field of Flodden—now sinking and again flashing high as the excited charger leaped onward into the shattered ranks of Cossacks—nerved his followers to quicker, fiercer blows. The shock of the onset drove the Russian horse back upon the infantry. There Murat's squadrons

The Americans belonged to Colonel Doniphan's famous expedition. Their leader was Colonel Sterling Price. Two hours' steady battering with four cannon proved simply a waste of good powder and shot. Then five companies of the First dragoons charged up to the wall with ladders and axes. Through holes cut in the church firebrands were thrown in, and in the confusion resulting a party of stormers got up to the door. Although every assault failed, the valor in Price's ranks knew no limit. Captain Burgwin headed the attacks until he was killed, and many other officers as well as intrepid dragoons fell under Mexican bullets. At last a six pounder, rushed by valiant hands to within 30 yards of the wall, knocked a hole through large enough to admit four soldiers abreast, and in that way the stormers entered.

The melee inside admits of no description. It was a combat for revenge, a double revenge at that, and for every one of the 54 white soldiers cut down in the assault three of the turbulent, tawny Mexicans paid with their blood.

GEORGE L. KILMER.

The 7th of February is the anniversary of the battle of Eylau between the French and Russians in 1807, up to that time the bloodiest encounter in Napoleon's wars. Early in the morning during a blinding snowstorm, Augereau's French division charged upon the Russians, and while their cannon mowed down his regiments the terrible Cossack hordes dashed up on both flanks, cutting down thousands and capturing thousands more. When the storm cleared, only 3,000 out of that gallant corps of 16,000 veterans remained. The battle was to decide the fate of his empire, and Napoleon ordered a grand charge of the Imperial guard and all the cavalry—his noble reserve. Murat, whom Napoleon styled "the best cavalry officer in the world," rode at their head. Slowly gathering momentum as they descended the snow covered slope, the squadrons, mustering 14,000 sabers, broke into a rapid pace across the field, where Augereau's line had been destroyed.

Their leader could be singled out by his streaming white plume, and as he spurred on into the mass of Russian horsemen, hewing a pathway by his own fiery strength, his white plume, like the pennon of Marmion on the field of Flodden—now sinking and again flashing high as the excited charger leaped onward into the shattered ranks of Cossacks—nerved his followers to quicker, fiercer blows. The shock of the onset drove the Russian horse back upon the infantry. There Murat's squadrons were checked. Seeing a line of Russian foot soldiers whose bullets emptied his saddles more rapidly than Cossack sabers had done, he spurred his horse upon their blazing muskets. Instantly the men of the Old Guard who had clung by him through all the storm closed in behind their valiant leader. With flashing sword in one hand and pistol in the other, the bridge reins in his teeth, he dashed into the Russian line with a fury that swept it from the field, routed as thoroughly as the mass of Cossacks had been by the ardor of that first magnificent galloping charge.
